Preliminary designs shown on proposed new high school

PRELIMINARY designs for a new Muscatine High School with a total initial capacity of about 4,000 students were viewed Monday morning by the school board.

Four representatives of the architectural-engineering firm of Langdon, Desimone and Davis, Des Moines, were present to go over the proposed designs with the board. They presented a number of options for the new school.

Following the board's approval of the preliminary designs, the firm will be asked to submit plans to the board for final approval.

Schematic drawings were presented to the board and will be referred for the following description and approval.
